DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Applicant amendment of 2-24-06 amended claims 1, 5 and 22 7 well as traversed rejections of Claims 1 - 15.

Currently, claims 1- 15 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Regarding claims 1, 5 and 7, the words "maybe" and "may" in the claims are considered tentative words and thereby are not positively recited, which makes determining the metes and bounds of the claims almost possible.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Martin US Patent No. 6,606,607 in view of Harrington US Patent No. 6,161,099.

Regarding claim 1. Martin discloses a sales system for selling a product by using the Internet, comprising:

- A user terminal connected to the Internet (Martin: "buyer interface 16"); and
- A supplier terminal (Martin: "administrator interface 14") which randomly selects a price of the product from a plurality of prices within a predetermined price range (Martin: column 2, lines 4-34, "Calculating a virtual minimum acceptable price (VMAP) for the product, where VMAP is a randomly calculated percent greater than MAP for the product..."), and presents the selected price on the user terminal together with a predetermined term of validity (Martin: column 6, lines 20-63, "in one embodiment of the invention, the predetermined time period is set at one hour."

Martin does not expressly disclose a supplier terminal, which upon receiving an application for purchasing the product from the user terminal via the Internet, charges a commission fee from the user operating the user terminal.

Harrington discloses a supplier terminal, which upon receiving an application for purchasing the product from the user terminal via the Internet, charges a commission fee from the user operating the user terminal (Harrington: column 5, lines 1-10).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided the method and system of Martin to have incorporated a commission scheme of the type demonstrated by Harrington in order to allow each user to gather a price including all calculations of cost (Harrington: column 5, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 2. Martin in view of Harrington discloses a system according to claim 1 as indicated supra. Harrington further discloses a sales system, wherein the supplier terminal stores the standard price of the product, and the commission fee is determined by multiplying a predetermined rate to the standard price (Harrington: column 5, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 3. Martin further discloses a sales system, comprising an audit authority terminal for supervising the settings of the prices by the supplier terminal (Martin: Figure 9B).

Regarding claim 4. Martin in view of Harrington discloses a system according to claim 1 as indicated supra. Martin does not expressly disclose a reselling function for reselling the privilege to purchase the product at the price presented by the supplier terminal to a third person. Harrington discloses a sale system, comprising a reselling function for reselling the privilege to purchase the product at the price presented by the supplier terminal to a third person (Harrington: column 6, lines 10-26, "The present invention concerns original issuer municipal bond auctions in which a municipality offers its bonds to purchasers, generally underwriters who resell them to the public."). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided the method and system of Martin to have incorporated the reselling function of the type demonstrated by Harrington because with auctions of various financial instruments there is a significant difference between the original issuer and subsequent resale of portions of this instrument in the secondary market (Harrington: column 2, lines 49-60).

Regarding claims 5-8. Claims 5-8 are rejected under the same rationale as set forth above in claims 1-4.

Regarding claim 9. Martin in view of Harrington discloses a system according to claim 1 as indicated supra. Harrington further discloses a sale system wherein a price history of the product is presented on the user terminal together with the selected price of the product (Harrington: column 7, lines 34-53, "Bid Histories").

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided the method and system of Martin to have incorporated a price history presentation scheme of the type demonstrated by Harrington in order to allow each user to gather a price including all calculations of cost (Harrington: column 5, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 10. Martin in view of Harrington discloses a system according to claim 1 as indicated supra. Harrington further discloses a sale system wherein the commission fee is non-refundable (Harrington: column 5, lines 1-10).

Regarding claim 11. Martin further discloses a system wherein the predetermined term of validity contains an expiration date, such that a user cannot purchase the product after the expiration date (Martin: column 6, lines 20-63).

Regarding claim 12. Claim 12 is rejected under the same rationale as set forth above in claim

Regarding claim 13. Claim 13 is rejected under the same rationale as set forth above in claim 9.

Regarding claim 14. Martin discloses a method wherein the predetermined term of validity contains an expiration date, such that a user cannot purchase the product after the expiration date (Martin: column 1, lines 20-36).

Regarding claim 15. Martin discloses a storage medium wherein the predetermined term of validity contains an expiration date, such that a user cannot purchase the product after the expiration date (Martin: column 1, lines 20-36).

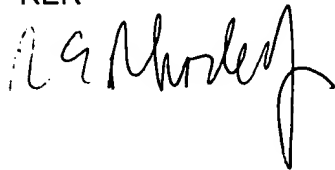

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
